Legacy Intervenes

Highlighting Our Academic Supports.

During the middle of the school day, scholars receive intervention in Reading or Math. Based on where our scholars are performing, they participate in a targeted activity that supports their reading and math growth. Students are reading plays about Martin Luther King Jr., researching their own articles and presenting them to their classmates, receiving targeted reading instruction through the online MindPlay program. In math, scholars participate in problem solving exercises to expand their critical thinking skills, and targeted lessons through the iReady program. At Legacy, we believe that every child has their own learning path and we structure our day to support each individual scholar.
